

Aggregating audio and video archives at a national level

Marie-Helene Serra, Cite de la musique, Paris, France

Two projects bringing together digital resources coming from different musical institutions holding concerts venues at a national level are described. One concerns the french classical orchestras and the other several traditional music performing centres. The specificities of the french orchestras website are presented as well as the portal devoted to traditional music which harvests metadata from institutions in Paris and proposes geographic browsing as well as filtering with languages, peoples, instruments...
