

Phivos Mylonas

Dr. Phivos Mylonas is currently a Researcher by the Image, Video and Multimedia Laboratory of the National Technical University of Athens. He obtained his Diploma in Electrical and Computer Engineering from NTUA (2001), his M.Sc. in Advanced Information Systems from University of Athens (2003) and his Ph.D. degree from NTUA (2008). His research interests lie in the areas of content-based information retrieval, knowledge-assisted multimedia analysis and issues related to multimedia personalization, user adaptation and profiling.

He has published articles in 21 international journals and book chapters, he is the author of 38 papers in international conferences, he has co-edited 6 books and 4 international journals, he is a reviewer for 8 international journals and has been involved in the organization of 14 international conferences. He is an IEEE (1999) and ACM (2001) member, a member of the Technical Chamber of Greece since 2001 and a member of W3C since 2009.