

Kara Van Malssen

---

Kara Van Malssen is Senior Research Scholar at New York University (NYU) for the Preserving Digital Public Television Project, part of the National Digital Information Infrastructure and Preservation Program (NDIIPP) of the Library of Congress. She is responsible for leading the implementation of metadata standards and determining selection and workflow requirements for a repository of born-digital public television content. She is also a member of the NYU Moving Image Archiving and Preservation Program Audiovisual Preservation Exchange (APEX) team, and has been an instructor at workshops on preservation of moving image and sound media in Accra, Ghana as part of this program. Kara is also a lecturer for ICCROM's SOIMA programme. She is an active member of the Association of Moving Image Archivists (AMIA) International Outreach Committee and Advocacy Committee. Kara holds an MA in Moving Image Archiving and Preservation from NYU.